The Music City Connection: Nashville is known as "Music City," and the Predators have embraced the city's musical heritage. Country music stars frequently perform the national anthem, and the team's goal song, "I Like It, I Love It" by Tim McGraw, is a fan favorite.

"Tossing the Catfish" Tradition: Similar to the Detroit Red Wings' octopus tradition, Predators fans toss catfish onto the ice during playoff games. The tradition started in the early 2000s and has become a unique symbol of Nashville's playoff atmosphere.
