Rapid Ascent: The Panthers were founded in 1993 and remarkably reached the Stanley Cup Final just three years later in 1996. Although they lost to the Colorado Avalanche, their quick rise to success established them as a competitive force in the NHL.

The Rat Trick Tradition: During the 1996 playoffs, forward Scott Mellanby killed a rat in the locker room before scoring two goals in the game. This incident sparked the "rat trick," where fans threw plastic rats onto the ice after every Panthers goal.
